"Hello," said Kailah.

"Hello," said the woman. "My name is Penny the Painter. And what are your names?"

"I'm Kailah," said Kailah.

"And I'm Lyndsey," said Lyndsey.

"It's a pleasure to meet you," said Penny. "I'm a painter. I can paint anything you can imagine."

Kailah and Lyndsey were amazed. They had never met a painter before.

"Can you paint us a picture of a unicorn?" asked Kailah.

"Of course," said Penny. She dipped her paintbrush into her palette and began to paint. A few minutes later, she had created a beautiful painting of a unicorn with a flowing mane and tail.

"Wow!" exclaimed Lyndsey. "That's amazing!"

"Thank you," said Penny. "Now, what else would you like me to paint?"

Kailah and Lyndsey thought for a moment.

"How about a picture of a rainbow?" asked Kailah.

"Or a picture of a castle in the clouds?" suggested Lyndsey.

Penny smiled. "I can do that," she said. And so, she painted a rainbow with all the colors of the spectrum. Then, she painted a castle in the clouds, with turrets and towers and a moat.

Kailah and Lyndsey were so happy with Penny's paintings that they asked her if she would come home with them. Penny agreed, and the three of them became the best of friends.

Every day, Penny would paint something new for Kailah and Lyndsey. She painted pictures of animals, flowers, landscapes, and even people. Kailah and Lyndsey loved Penny's paintings because they were so beautiful and imaginative. They also loved Penny because she was kind and caring and always made them laugh.

One day, Penny told Kailah and Lyndsey that she had to leave. She said that she had to go on a journey to find new inspiration for her paintings. Kailah and Lyndsey were sad to see Penny go, but they knew that she would be back someday.

And so, Penny the Painter left Kailah and Lyndsey and set off on her journey. But she never forgot her two friends, and she often thought of them as she traveled the world.

Years later, Penny returned to the town where Kailah and Lyndsey lived. She had traveled far and wide and had seen many amazing things. She had painted pictures of all the different cultures and landscapes she had seen. And she had met many interesting people along the way.

Kailah and Lyndsey were so happy to see Penny again. They had missed her very much. And they were amazed by all the stories she had to tell.

Penny told Kailah and Lyndsey about her adventures and showed them the paintings she had created. Kailah and Lyndsey were so inspired by Penny's stories and paintings that they decided to become painters themselves.

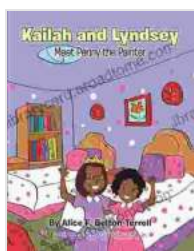

And so, Kailah and Lyndsey became two of the most famous painters in the world. They traveled the world, just like Penny, and they painted pictures of all the different cultures and landscapes they saw. And they always remembered the lessons they had learned from Penny the Painter.
